

Sophisticated Business Legal Advice Without a Trip Into the Big City

When looking for a high-quality team of business attorneys, it would only seem natural to turn to the city of Boston for sophisticated representation. For over 30 years, however, Newburyport-based law firm Finneran & Nicholson, founded in 1984, has served its clients with a highly qualified and experienced team of attorneys who understand the particular challenges businesses face and are committed to representing each client with the utmost levels of integrity and personalized attention. Today, the firm has more than 400 clients, from multinational corporations to small start-ups.

“A lot of businesses outgrow their law firms,” says Susan Rogers Finneran. “We have the depth and experience to serve our clients from start-up to strategic planning and risk management as they grow. We are a one-stop shop for all their business law needs. Many of our clients have been with us for over 20 years. We understand the importance of each relationship, and we show our respect by valuing hard work and professionalism and by responding immediately to client communication.”

Finneran & Nicholson includes a staff of seven attorneys licensed to offer counsel across the New England region and in a range of court jurisdictions. The firm’s lawyers represent client interests in matters of business formation and operations; transactions and advisory work; business, employment and securities litigation; employment law; estate and business planning; capital formation; and bankruptcy. The firm has considerable experience in handling highly complex litigation matters in various federal and state courts and arbitrations throughout New England.

Firm litigation principal Thomas G. Nicholson says that Finneran & Nicholson’s mission statement is to provide the same level of ability and experience as the big-city firms without the high price tag.

“We offer the same quality without the big Boston prices,” says Nicholson. “We don’t have the high overhead of those large firms, and we pass that savings along to our clients.”

Nicholson explains that at Finneran & Nicholson, attorneys work in interdisciplinary teams to bring solutions to clients, but clients are never billed for the same service from two attorneys. This gives clients the best possible advice while avoiding the possibility of overbilling.

The lower price does not mean less qualified representation, however. Finneran & Nicholson attorneys have experience across a wide breadth of business law disciplines. In addition, staff attorneys belong to several bar and professional associations. They are also frequent lecturers and presenters at local Chambers of Commerce, business and professional groups.
